Disapproves of CEO

I worked at Desert AIDS Project full-time

Pros

Beautiful building, meet great people.

Cons

This is the worst place I ever worked. They speak of self care, yet cause you stress. Management pretends to care when they are in your face. No need to complain nothing gets done. The only way to deal with them is by hiring a laywer to get their attention.

Advice to Management

Learn how to manage.

Negative Outlook

I worked at Desert AIDS Project full-time for more than 3 years

Pros

they have parties all the time to make you feel better about all the chaos of management

Cons

senior management is not a cohesive team, nor do they work together to support the agency. the extreme behaviors of senior management is tolerated and those impacted just have to deal with the stress of these people. the level of unprofessional engagement is remarkable. you have to fight an uphill battle to get anything accomplished and upper management just lets it all happen. talented staff come and ago because leaders attitudes are tolerated and other directors have to cope with these extreme behaviors and stress.

Advice to Management

stop letting amazing talented people be sucked up by these intolerable behaviors. you bring in great talent and make them deal with such behavioral attitudes. its not ok just because they are taking HIV medications that others have to deal with these extreme behaviors and stress of their colleagues.

Former Employee - Case Manager in Palm Springs, CA

Doesn't Recommend
Negative Outlook

I worked at Desert AIDS Project full-time for more than 3 years

Pros

Things have become very bad here.

Cons

A true lack of care for the Aids patients new to the area. Denial of medical is frequent for many unqualified reasons. Mostly, to save money and add perks to the current administration. this place claims to give treatment to the uninsured but we have had to deny them treatment many times.

Advice to Management

Start over with a fresh group from the top down.

Positive Outlook

I have been working at Desert AIDS Project full-time for more than 5 years

Pros

D.A.P. offers a great working environment with a very listening and supportive management. You'll find that the work atmosphere is enjoyable, positive, enlightening and it's an evolving and growing health care business.

The employees are amazingly committed to the overall philosophy and mission of the agency. Many staff have been here over 10+ years and are truly committed.

Senior management and the Board of Directos are extremely involved in agency performance, goals and postioning.

Show Less

Cons

Fair market and competitive salary's are not always the norm within each department, and performance increases are few as well.

Opportunities for advancement are somewhat limited by the structure of the business. More attention could be given to determining career development opportunities and the agency is seeing expansion as well.
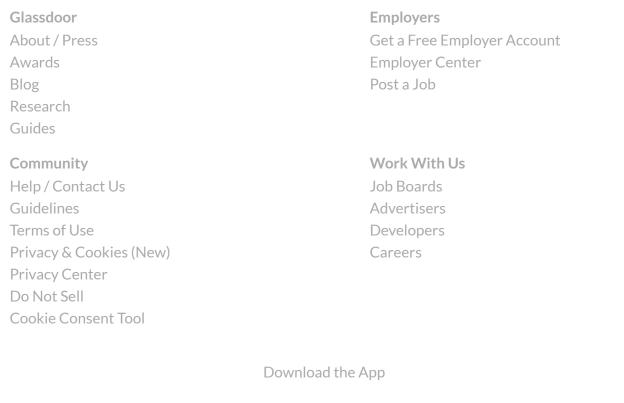

Advice to Management

Develop a stronger program for employee retention and pay them a more competitive rate.
